The purpose of this book is to highlight the global emphasis of Saint Paul's teaching and life. We will examine Paul's development, his mission theology, and the heated controversies his teaching provoked. In the light of Paul's global gospel the author looks at today's mission and sees the same controversies that Paul faced and the same needed corrections he urged. He explains how the Christian church can recover Paul's global vision and how we can redirect mission to fulfill God's global purpose. The reader will discover the heart of God that Paul represented so powerfully, the heart that wants us to love the nations still outside of the kingdom as much as he loves us.
