Towering 14,162 feet above sea level in far northern California, Mount Shasta is a landmark comparable to Japan's Mount Fuji. Home to California's largest glacier, it is also one of the volcanoes of the Cascade Range, part of the Pacific Ocean's 'Ring of Fire.' For the Mount Shasta 2009 wall calendar, photographer Jane English has collected images by herself and other photographers and paired them with inspirational writings that give diverse perspectives on this magnificent mountain.
