Fair Play is the type of love story that is rarely told, a revelatory depiction of contentment, hard-won and exhilarating.

Mari is a writer and Jonna is an artist, and they live at opposite ends of a big apartment building, their studios connected by a long attic passageway. They have argued, worked, and laughed together for decades. Yet they've never really stopped taking each other by surprise. Fair Play shows us Mari and Jona's intertwined lives as they watch Fassbinder films and Westerns, critique each other's work, spend time on a solitary island (recognizable to readers of Jansson's The Summer Book), travel through the American Southwest, and turn life into nothing less than art.

As a college student, I exactly feel bored in order to read. If their teacher asked them to go to the library in order to make a summary for some publication, they are complained. Just tiny students that have reading's heart and soul or make it their pastime. They just do what the instructor wants, like being asked to go to the library. They go there but aren't really reading. Any student feels that examining is not important, boring, as well as can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. A book is very important in your case.
