Yen (NHB Modern Plays) Anna Jordan

Anna Jordan's Bruntwood Prize-winning play, Yen explores a childhood lived without boundaries and the consequences of being forced to grow up on your own.

Hench is sixteen, Bobbie is thirteen. They're home alone in Feltham with their dog Taliban; playing PlayStation, streaming porn, watching the world go by. Sometimes their mum Maggie visits, usually with empty pockets and empty promises. Then Jenny shows up.

Yen won the 2013 Bruntwood Prize for Playwriting, and was first performed at the Royal Exchange Theatre, Manchester, in 2015.

This new edition published alongside the Royal Court Theatre production in January 2016.

'[a] brutal but tender study of brotherhood... the dynamic range of Jordan's writing is extraordinary... achieves the uncommon feat of being difficult to watch yet easy to love' - Guardian

'very impressive... [Jordan] has a great ear for dialogue' - British Theatre Guide

'bring[s] to mind Philip Ridley's Mercury Fur... [asks] lots of necessary and potent questions' - Exeunt Magazine

Is it you actually who having spare time and then spend it whole day through watching television programs or just lying on the bed? Do you need something totally new? This Yen (NHB Modern Plays) can be the respond to, oh how comes? It's a book you know. You are consequently out of date, spending your extra time by reading in this completely new era is common not a geek activity. So what these publications have than the others?

Louis Ono:

As a student exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library or to make summary for some book, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's heart or real their pastime. They just do what the trainer want, like asked to go to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring and can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important for you personally. As we know that on this era, many ways to get whatever we wish. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Yen (NHB Modern Plays) can make you feel more interested to read.
